White is shown with his TV wife, Kate Murtagh, and his TV daughter, Jeanine Cashell. Both White and Miss Beattie were raised in Porterville; White still resides here with his family; both are alumni of the Porterville Barn Theater, which Tewksbury organized and directed prior to moving into the "big time" when he left Porterville in the mid 1950s. # Bill White Plays Supporting Role In New Pete Tewksbury TV Show Due For Release This Fall On NBC

PORTERVILLE, July 5 — Another resident of Porterville may be headed for a professional career in television — Bill White, who will be seen in the new one-hour series, "It's A Man's World", that will take over the 7:30-8:30 p.m. spot on the NBC network this fall.

As Virgil Dobson, a Midwest grocery store operator, White will play a supporting role in the new family-type, comedy-drama series that is being developed, produced and directed by Pete Tewksbury, who was the organizer and first director of Porterville's Barn theater.

And appearing also in "It's A Man's World" will be another former Porterville resident, Patricia Beattie, daughter of the late Douglas Beattie, former opera star and citrus property owner in Porterville.

This should be enough "local" names from a town the size of Porterville in a major television series, but there is one more — Jim Leighton, co-creator and associate producer with Tewksbury, who was with the touring company of the Barn Theater back in the 1950s.

Certainly Porterville viewers will recognize Miss Beattie and White on their TV screens, but they won't recognize their names: Miss Beattie has the professional

EDITORIAL

We herewith nominate the City of Porterville for the National Municipalities Undistinguished Service Award for the creation of unbeautiful vistas, and for exemplary action in the realm of bureaucratic riding off in all directions and the devil take the hindmost.

Specifically, one department of the city tries to grow trees on city park property; another department of the city, gallantly moving beyond the call of duty, sets fire to the trees.

And never the twain shall meet.

We further recommend that the Oak Leaf Cluster be added to the Undistinguished Service Award, since only two out of some 100 trees on the north slope of Murry hill below Park Drive were missed during the magnificent performance of the tree burners.

MAJOR BUSINESS improvement is underway at Main and North streets in Porterville as a new location for the Cadillac-Oldsmobile-Pontiac agency of Bob McLaughlin. Bob Lutz is constructing the building; Max Young is the building contractor. Included in some 10,500 square feet of floor space will be a new car showroom, offices, and a garage; an additional 20,000 square feet will be available for used car display, and other uses. Completion is planned by the middle of September; cost of the project is around $100,000.

PUBLIC MEETING TUESDAY ON SCHOOL TAX SPONSORED BY PORTERVILLE TAXPAYERS

PORTERVILLE, July 5 — The pros and cons of a proposed five-year, 50-cent special tax for the Porterville Elementary School district will be discussed Tuesday evening, July 10, at a public meeting set for 7:30 p.m. in the Porterville city hall.

The meeting is sponsored by the Porterville Taxpayers' association; school officials will discuss problems they face and use of money that would be derived from a special tax. They will also answer questions from the floor.

Vote on the proposed 50-cent tax is set for Tuesday, July 24.

SOMEONE WILL win this Mink Stole at the Tulare County Dairy Fiesta Ball that will be held Saturday night at the Veterans' Memorial hall in Tulare as a concluding feature of the county's June is Dairy Month program. Modeling the stole is Miss Bernadette Lucio, Tulare County's June Dairy Month queen for 1961-62. Admiring the stole and the model from left are Lou Seely, Tulare County June Dairy Month Committee chairman; Fred Olsson, manager, Knudsen creamery, Visalia, and Joseph R. Nunes, Exeter dairyman.

Cartlidge On Staff

THE GREEN LIGHT

Recently we have had professors, politicians and others erudite in matters economic, advising of a possible business recession. Many are taking it for granted that the break in stock prices, the drop in confidence, will be followed by a business slump.

Not all agree with this. In support of the contention that a business recession IS NOT a foregone conclusion, is the following.

Our basic economic problems (union monopolies, sky-high taxes, earnings squeeze, etc.) are indeed serious but they are not new. We had them last year and the year before and the year before, etc. Actually few business upturns as solid as the current one have been so belittled by so many. The press and the Administration constantly refer to the failure of the economy to move ahead more vigorously, giving the impression that it is not doing well. The trouble does not lie in the vigor of the 1962 advance but in the overly-optimistic projections of late 1961 and the political and academic hoop-la about "speeding up our growth rate." Economic activity has been pushing ahead in good style, industrial activity reached an all time high in May for the third successive month and is right on its long-term trend line.

The Federal Reserve Board index of industrial production made a new all-time high in May. It has gained each month this year. In addition, other broad indicators approaching or reaching new records include: employment, personal income and expenditures, housing starts, automobile sales, construction activity, capital spending, corporate profits.

The presence of an abundant supply of money certainly contradicts the gloomy forecasts. Banks are flush. Working capital of corporations has never been stronger with cash earnings at new highs.

There are many other substantial reasons why business should not only remain good but get substantially better. The decline in stock values is evidence of a general re-evaluation. Investors who are able to see through the maze of confusion are finding a real opportunity. While investors may not see a bright, clear green light, it definitely is not red.

CHARTERED BUS TO SEATTLE FAIR IS MODERN VERSION OF WAGON TRAIN

By Esther Wilcox Lowe

Forty-one Portervilleites went to the Seattle World's fair on a chartered bus, the group congregating in front of the Porterville chamber of commerce office the morning of June 13.

Several persons assisted in putting signs on the bus, designating we were from Porterville; then we loaded and left promptly at 9 a.m. We traveled west to highway 99, then north through the open Central California valley. Our first rest stop was Merced, then on to Sacramento for lunch and a change of drivers.

We left Sacramento, following the Sacramento river for many miles, seeing many small boats, a few houseboats and the usual cottages along the shore. After leaving the river we continued north through the Sacramento valley; dark clouds formed over the mountains, cloaking both Mt. Lassen and Mt. Shasta, and shortly there were splatters of rain on the windows.

LOADING UP for the charter bus trip to the Seattle World fair - and Mrs. Dan Hanggi points to a sign that says the bus was Made in Japan.

Our dinner stop was at the Paul Bunyan restaurant in Redding. This was the only restaurant on the entire trip that could accommodate the entire group.

After dinner we continued through the beautiful Shasta area, viewing Shasta lake, with its many canyons, coves and river inlets. Boating seemed to be a very active sport on the lake. Even though the hour was late, we had a long twilight, so were able to see the profuse bloom of wild lilac, lupine and dogwood.

We passed into Oregon after dark and continued to Medford for our next rest stop, and a change of drivers. By this time there was much napping by members of the party as all were tired, and had decided that the hour was too late for more singing.

We stopped at Eugene, then went on to Portland for breakfast, and another driver. We left Portland at 7 a.m. — in daylight

NEW BOOKS ON SHELVES OF CITY LIBRARY

ONE MAN'S FREEDOM, by Edward Bennett Williams, is a book for careful and thoughtful reading, a tremendous human document. Inevitably it will be compared with Nizer's MY LIFE IN COURT, but the two books are written from wholly different angles. Nizer's book is autobiographical, but Williams' book is basically his philosophy as a defense lawyer. Built around his belief that our civil liberties are threatened, this is a plea for sustaining a government of laws, a government by consent of the governed, and he sees world peace only as achieved through a foundation built on law.

The sarcastic title of the book "THE AGE OF HAPPY PROBLEMS, comes from the statement made to Herbert Gold, the author, by a TV producer — "I don't think you know what we want. We want happy stories about happy people with happy problems." This is a collection of sharp, honest, provocative essays on life in the United States. With perception and irony, Gold holds up a mirror to us all.

Life on the Italian peninsula many MANY hundreds of years ago, is described in two recent books. In THE VALLEY OF CAMONICA, by Emanuel Anati, we have a fascinating glimpse of a people forgotten until now. Their independent existence ended when they were absorbed into the Roman Empire in 16 B.C., and as late as fifty years ago there was no proof that they had ever existed. Now we have a picture of nearly 2,000 years of their existence, and of the prevasiveness of cultural exchanges in pre-historic Europe. There is a growing belief among scholars that much of present-day European society and culture was well established in pre-historic times, and Anati reinforces that view.

The second book referred to above is THE LIFE AND TIMES OF TARQUIN THE ETRUSCAN, by Carlo Maria Franzero. This account of Etruria begins five centuries before Rome was founded, and explains why Rome so utterly destroyed so much of the Etruscan civilization. It makes a strong case for the importance of Etruscan infulence on Italian history.

Winter wheat production in California is forecast at 225,000 tons.

BUS TO SEATTLE

— the Oregon and Washington countryside was covered with the gold of Scotch Broom. We crossed the Willamette and the Columbia rivers and wished that our valley could have at least one such river.

We arrived in the Seattle bus station at 10:30 a.m. The driver was given a guide to our Apartment Hotel and we arrived at 10:45 a.m., 25¾ hours from Porterville. We were pleasantly surprised by the lovely accommodations, and through the diplomatic efforts of our genial co-wagonmaster, Jeff Edwards, the 41 members of the party were accommodated in the 10 apartments.

Many members attended the Fair immediately upon getting settled. Others found a comfortable restaurant and had lunch, then seeking other attractions for the afternoon.

On Friday most everyone was on hand early for the triumphant arrival of the Porterville high school band, singers, and Studio band. When we arrived at the Plaza of States we met many others from Porterville, including the chaperones, at which time co-wagonmaster, Virgil Lowe, passed out identification stickers on which each person wrote his name, and on which were the words, "California State Band and Madrigal Singers, Porterville, California."

These badges certainly caused a great deal of comment throughout the day as they identified us as being part of the large group accompanying the band.

DRIVE TO STAMP OUT POLIO SPONSORED BY TULARE COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY

VISALIA, July 5 — A drive to stamp out polio using oral polio vaccine has been scheduled to begin in September. The mass immunization program throughout the county will be sponsored by the Tulare County Medical society.

Participating in the drive, to be known as "SOP on SOS" (Stamp Out Polio on Sabin Oral Sunday) will be public and private health agencies, physicians, nurses, and other allied and medical and professional personnel, as well as civic and governmental groups.

The Tulare County program will begin in the fall to coincide with the overall statewide attack on the crippling disease. The aim is to have at least 120,000 county residents receive three doses each of the Sabin oral vaccine at five to six weeks intervals. The three Sundays will be in September, November, and December.

The Sabin oral vaccine is taken by mouth (no needles) by placing two drops of the vaccine on a cube of sugar. The sugar is chewed and swallowed. For infants, two drops are placed in the mouth. The cost will be 25 cents for each dose.

Until the fall oral vaccine campaign begins, Salk vaccine injections are suggested as an alternate method to obtain immunization against polio.

Forecast for California late spring potatoes is for a crop 33 per cent below 1961.

Committee Maps Program To Create Industrial Interest

PORTERVILLE, July 5 — A program to create interest in industrial development in the Porterville area was discussed at a meeting of the Porterville chamber of commerce industrial committee this week.

Specific steps to be taken include: Revision of the community Industrial Survey report, an action that is taken every two years; supplying of 500 copies of the revised reports to the California State chamber of commerce for mailing to industrial firms; entered into agreement with the Factory Locating service, a firm that operates nationally in development of industrial prospects.

The committee, chairmanned by Lester J. Hamilton, also discussed use of Porterville Municipal airport property for industry, with City Councilman Aubrey M. Lumley, who is also a member of the Industrial committee, named to check the possibility of a city charter amendment on the 1963 city ballot extending the length of time that city property can be leased.

MEDICINE CHEST "LEFTOVERS"

There's but one good place in the home for "leftovers." That's the refrigerator—and the "leftovers" should be foods, not medicines.

Medicine chest "leftovers" are risky at best, and often downright dangerous. The medicine your physician prescribed a year or so ago was intended to be used then, not now. Avoid serious danger—dump old medicine at once.

Each illness requires scientific diagnosis — and, usually, specialized medicine is indicated.

Tule River Sporting Goods — Springville

I know it's beginning to sound monotonous, but it's still true that fishing is very good on all forks of the Tule river. The water is just right for either bait fishing or fly fishing. Extra large plants this year add to the excellence of the fishing in the easily reached areas. Fishing for native trout is better this year than for any time in the last eight to 10 years.

Big Kern river is still very high, but clearing, with fishing improving; Little Kern is dropping and fishing is getting good.

All high country lakes now accessible—good reports from Maggie, Evalyn, and Blossom lakes. All high country small streams still good.

Success lake very good for small bass (1 lb. class) bluegill, and sunfish: very hot, weatherwise, during the day.

Loren Frame, of Porterville, caught a 21 inch Brown trout Sunday afternoon just below the Camp Nelson dump; it weighed three pounds.

Bill White Plays

name of Ann Schuyler, White will not be Bill White, but, instead, Scott White.

Why the change of name?

Well, Bill explains it this way, "After I had read for the part and been accepted, the question of a name came up. I thought Bill was good enough, or William, or maybe my middle name, Henry, but it turned out that there were already actors with these names.

"After talking over other names in the family, we finally hit on Scott. That's my sister's married name."

White took his first shot at acting in the early days of the Barn — at that time he was an announcer at radio station KTIP, and Tewksbury was doing what a lot of people said couldn't be done in Porterville — developing a community theater.

"Pete called me on the phone one day," White recalls, "and asked if I would take a small role in a Barn play. I sort of figured anything for a laugh, and said I would. That started it."

White went on up the line into starring roles at the Barn, but had no idea of making acting a profession. After Tewksbury moved into the "big time" in Hollywood, White often joked with him about "when are you going to give me a job?"

Then it happened a few months ago.

"Pete phoned to ask if I wanted to read for a part in his new series," White says. "I decided to try it, and the next thing I knew I'm under contract."

So far about 10 of the hour shows have been put on film, with White appearing in seven of them. With the first 13 shows to be completed by August, White will be in front of the cameras again either the last of this week or the first of next. Shooting of the second 13-week series is expected to start in October.

As for his present acting routine, White usually gets the script a day in advance. He reports when scheduled, getting his make-up first, then goes to the set; although the major actors rehearse their scenes prior to filming, White usually goes on without rehearsal.

"In a stage show you learn an entire sequence and go through with it," White says, "but in this TV business things are chopped up and you never know where you are. They will shoot one short bit several times from several angles, and there is no continuity. Later the film goes through the cutting room, and eventually the completed show comes out."

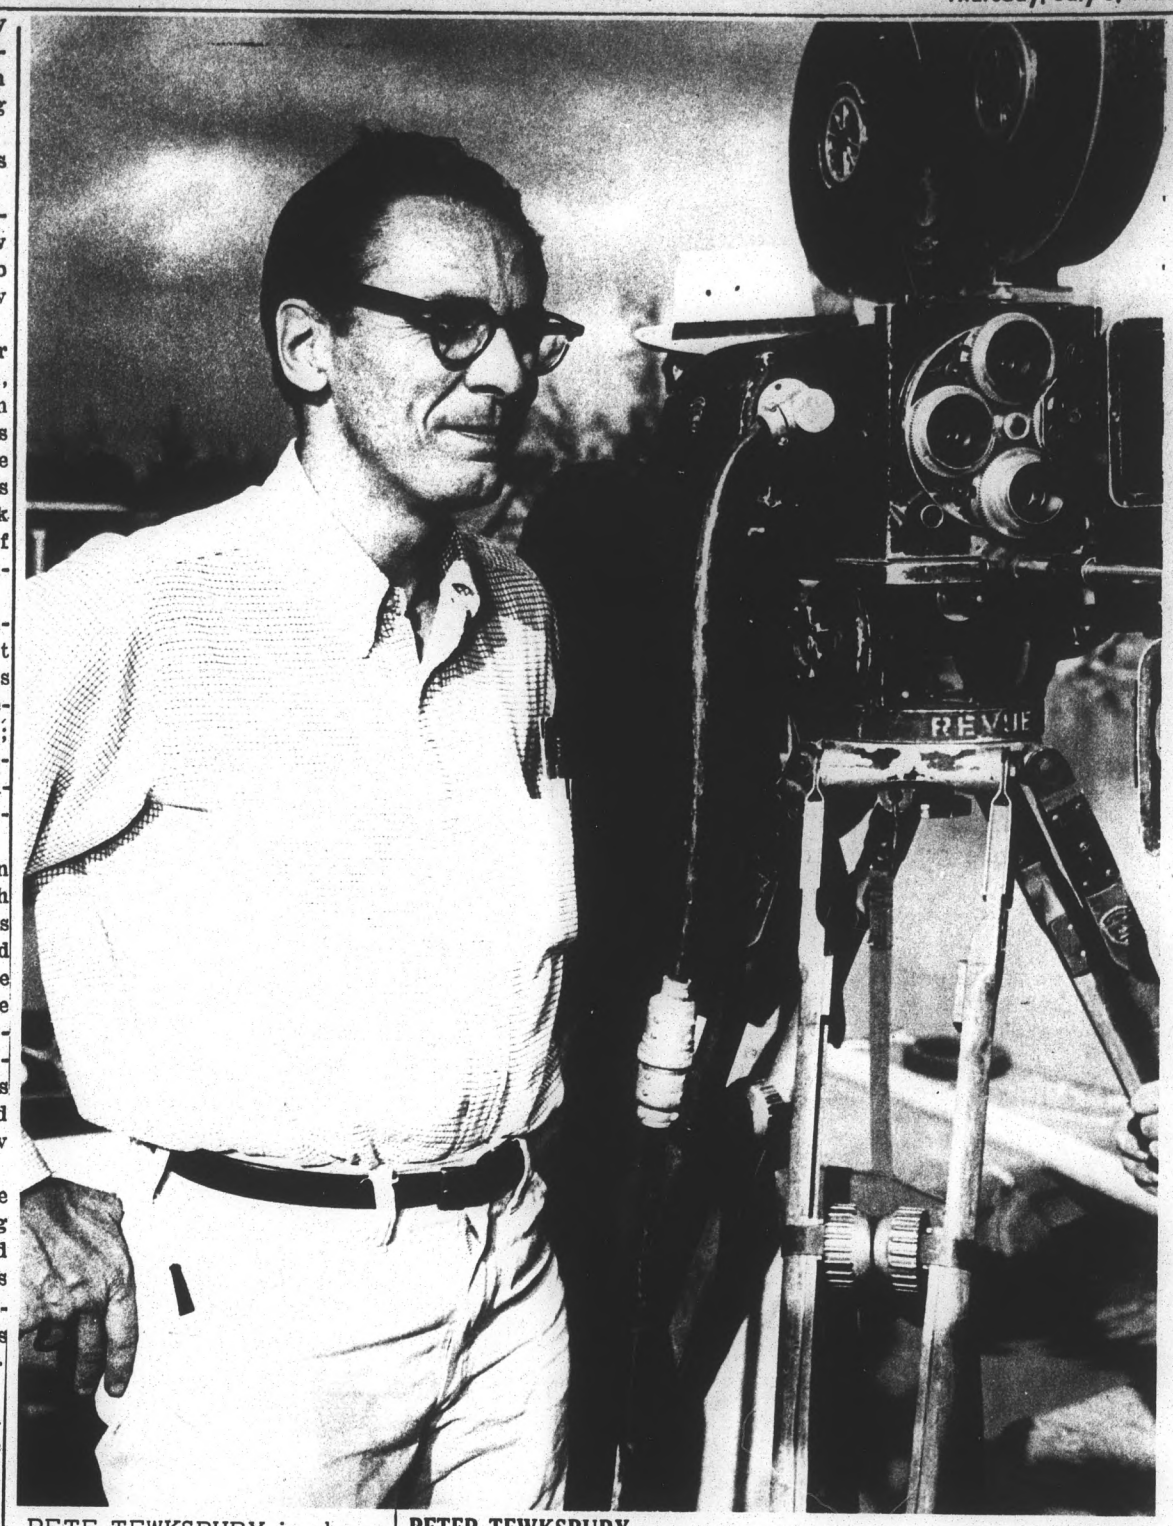

"It's A Man's World" tells the story of four young men growing up, getting their education, and maintaining their living quarters on a house boat in a small Midwestern town whose chief claims to fame are its river and century-old college.

Comedy, drama, excitement and adventure develop around these young men" as they build their background of new experiences while traveling from boyhood to manhood."

This is the type of family show that Tewksbury has specialized in. His "My Three Sons" was nominated for a Screen Producers Guild award, and an "Emmy" award; his "Father Knows Best" series won nine Emmys, including one for himself; in the period after he went to Hollywood from Porterville in 1954 he directed 26 episodes of "Life With Father", and he also directed "Professional Father", "The Johnny Carson Show", and Jackie Cooper's "The People's Choice".

As for White, he still isn't making any plans to move to Hollywood. "Why there are thousands of good actors trying to land something in Hollywood who would jump at a chance to work in a Tewksbury production," he says, "and here I get the call in Porterville. Maybe the old saying is right—it's not what you know but who you know."

At any rate White's acting career has been closely associated with telephone calls from Pete Tewksbury. Who knows, maybe the phone will continue to ring.

PETE TEWKSBURY is shown here on a Revue Studio set in Hollywood during filming of his newest TV series, "It's A Man's World". The photo is from an NBC Television Network brochure advertising release of the series; also from the brochure, is a story on Tewksbury, who, with his family, spent several years in Porterville after World War II.

PETER TEWKSBURY, whose My Three Sons will begin its third year as a top-rated network entry next fall, will produce, direct and, from time to time, write scripts for the new IT'S A MAN'S WORLD comedy-drama series of which he is the co-creator (with Jim Leighton).

In addition to developing My Three Sons, which he also produced, directed and periodically wrote in its premiere season, Tewksbury won a 1958 Emmy for his direction of Father Knows Best and contributed many scripts to this popular family comedy. Still earlier, he was associated with Life with Father, as director and writer, and with The People's Choice, as director.

Tewksbury prepared for what was to be a many-faceted TV career at Dartmouth College, where he was a member of the Dartmouth Players, and at the Cleveland Playhouse. In 1945, while on duty with the army, he organized the drama department of the Philippine University in Manila, and toured the Philippine Islands with several plays. In 1948, after his release from military service, he founded the Barn Theatre in Porterville, California, and served as its producing director until spring of 1954. In six years he produced, directed and sometimes starred in more than seventy-five full-length shows, including dramas, comedies, mysteries, children's shows, musicals and pageants, some of which he authored.

When Broadway's longest-running comedy hit, Life With Father, was transferred to the home screen, Tewksbury was tapped by producer Fletcher Markle to direct 26 episodes; he also wrote several. Turning to live TV, he directed Professional Father and The Johnny Carson Show for CBS in 1955. The following year found him directing Jackie Cooper's People's Choice comedy series and Father Knows Best, the popular all-time champion family comedy with Robert Young and Jane Wyatt. In the four years Tewksbury directed (and occasionally wrote) the latter series, it won nine Emmys, including his own, and was a frequent Top Ten entry.

In 1960 Tewksbury developed My Three Sons, for which he has been nominated for a "best direction" Emmy and a Screen Producers Guild award. Though it is totally different in style from IT'S A MAN'S WORLD, and half its length, My Three Sons has been praised by critics and viewers for some of the very qualities inherent in his new NBC series. The New York Times, in reviewing the premiere episode of My Three Sons commented that "the dialogue sounded as if it were spoken by human beings and the program reflected an awareness of the real problems of raising a litter of boys."

From Daybell Nursery By John

Now that the supreme court has ruled out praying as un-American, you will have to find some other answer to your garden problems. This may be difficult for those that have tried everything else, but have hope, someone will find the solution.

We trust the schools will be allowed to mention the praying mantis which is a very beneficial insect and eats aphis three meals a day. It's called praying mantis because it appears to have its fore legs folded in prayer. This it may be doing because some big fisted gardener is always about to clobber it for a pest.

So far no ruling has been made against mentioning Red spider but we expect one at any time. Meanwhile, watch your marigolds, roses, shade trees, and vegetables in case of infiltration by these undesirable elements. However, if you find any, don't call the FBI but come to "E" Street North of Olive for a bottle of Red spider smite.

While it's still legal to mention it, we would like to say a word about prayer plants which are for growing indoors. These fold up at night as if in prayer and are nice for fillers in your planter. This praying is one thing artificial plants can't do, although we expect to see the day when they will be that realistic.

We're closed on Sundays in spite of the supreme court but will be happy to see you the other six days.

desks, and $6,400 for cafeteria thables at Bartlett; also $51,000 to replace three buses, and $29,354 for contingencies.

Total anticipated costs is $857,637, the amount that it is expected will be raised by the proposed 50-cent tax over a five-year period.

As for priority of construction, board members have stated they now believe that first priority should go to shop and home economics facilities at Pioneer, and to two classrooms at Westfield. Beyond this point, they say, classroom will get first priority, followed by the multi-use rooms at West Putnam and Olive, while physical education facilities at Bartlett and Pioneer are last in order.

A complete policy statement by the board was published in last week's Farm Tribune.

Terra Bella

Also adding to the shipment that left San Francisco over the past weekend, was William Silveira, of Tulare. Herdsman in charge of 17 pigs from California, and 27 from Iowa, is Mike Rowan, Sonoma county 4-H club member, who had the outstanding swine exhibit at the 1961 California State fair and who is now a pre-veterinary student at Oklahoma State university.

A key person in securing the pigs was Nelson J. Adams, Sonoma county farm advisor of the University of California Agricultural Extension service.

The pigs will help furnish capital for a "4-H Livestock Bank" in Korea. From this bank a qualified Korean 4-H Club member can take a bred gilt with the understanding that from the first litter of pigs he will return two female pigs to the bank. These then will go to other club members. After the return of the two young animals, the boy or girl has ownership of the sow and her succeeding litters.

Since the start of the program in the early 1950's, gifts of some 600 pigs, and other livestock, have gone to Korean club members from the United States. The number of pigs has grown to a total of 2,500 available to club members each year on the bank basis, reports Joe Boyd, west coast consultant of the foundation.
